About the Speaker:

With a business career spanning 30 years Claudia Mamros created a unique approach to managing information chaos called the “Fundability Program” designing intuitive solutions to organise and manage information working collaboratively with business teams.

Claudia discovered her talent for bringing order to chaos in 1999, while working in a business unit within KPMG as an administrator. Thousands of documents were being modified, misplaced and lost. It was a BIG problem. Claudia fixed it.

Since then, she’s worked in a variety of environments including manufacturing, fabricating, banking, professional services and non-profits.

Claudia has a Master’s Certificate in Business Analysis from Schulich School of Business - University of Toronto. She is a Project Management Professional with broad knowledge in Information Technology Infrastructure Library (ITIL), shared networks, Electronic Records Management, and Quality Management Systems.

As the founder and principal consultant at iCinfo, Claudia established the company to deliver software and hardware agnostic solutions, which enable companies to work more effectively and efficiently with what they have before exploring costly automation. Her solutions help companies increase revenue, reduce costs and manage privacy.
